

Green Learning Homestead Cookie Policy

This policy explains how cookies and similar technologies are used on the Green Learning Homestead website, greenlearninghomestead.com, and together with our broader Privacy Policy, governs the collection and use of information connected with Green Learning Homestead LLC, aka GLH. By using GLH, you agree to the use of cookies and similar technologies as described in this Cookie Policy, subject to your rights to opt-out as you see fit and as permitted by law.

Cookies Declaration – GLH Values Your Privacy

We use cookies to enhance your browsing experience and analyze our website traffic. GLH does not engage in third-party or affiliate advertising. By clicking “Accept”, you consent to this use of cookies.

Essential Cookies – These cannot be declined because they support the basic functions of the GLH website and are excluded from your consent. This is a basic legal parameter regarding cookies.

All Other Cookies – For these, your permission is required. At any time, you can change or withdraw your consent to the use of nonessential cookies on the GLH website.

Web Browser Control – At your discretion, you can manage website cookies through appropriate settings. This includes scrubbing history files as a common browser function.

Your Choices and Control Over Cookies

You have the option to accept or decline cookies. This can be done through the cookie banner when you land on the GLH website. You can also accept or decline through the Cookie Setting button on the bottom of the website landing page.

Changes to Our Cookie Policy

GLH may update this Cookie Policy from time to time to reflect changes in our practices or for other operational, legal, or regulatory reasons. It’s up to you to review this policy periodically for any updates.

Understanding Cookies

What are Cookies

These are small text files stored on your device when you visit a website. They assist with your preferences, collect information, and monitor how you interact with websites to enhance your browsing experience.

Types of Cookies

Necessary Cookies – These cookies help make websites usable by enabling basic functions such as page navigation and access to secure areas. The website cannot function properly without these cookies.

Preference Cookies – These cookies enable a website to remember information that changes the way the website behaves or looks, such as your preferred language or the region where you live.

Statistical Cookies – These cookies help website administrators understand how you interact with their website by collecting and reporting information. This is anonymous with no personal information attached.

Marketing Cookies – These are used to track visitors across different website. With ecommerce websites, the intention is to display third-party ads that might be relevant and engaging for the individual user.

Note: GLH does not affiliate with any third-party advertisers to facilitate your overall privacy.

Social Media Cookies – These cookies are controlled through separate platforms.

Note: GLH only uses social media for announcements but cannot control how these platforms behave.

Rejecting Cookies

Rejecting non-essential or third-party cookies helps protect your online privacy by limiting how companies track your browsing activity across different websites.

Note: GLH is so tightly focused on homestead living that random browsing is likely not an issue.

What Happens When You Reject Cookies

Essential Features Remain – Rejecting cookies only applies to non-essential or third-party cookies. Keeping essential cookies facilitates basic functions like logging in to accounts and keeping items in shopping carts. After predetermined inactivity, commonly 30 days, essential cookies are often purged.

Loss of Personalization – Websites may forget your preferences, language settings, or region, requiring you to re-enter these or to log in more frequently.

Less Targeted Advertising – Ad slots available on many ecommerce websites will no longer be filled using a personal tracking profile from one website to another built from your cross-site activity.

Note: GLH does not have any advertising slots in the website.

When You Should Always Reject Cookies

Unencrypted Websites – Those starting with only http:// instead of https:// which is fully encrypted.

Note: This is the GLH website address <https://www.greenlearninghomestead.com>

Public Wi-Fi / Shared Devices – Anyone on the same network can hack into your personal information.

Websites Flagged as Unsafe – Often determined by your browser or security software.

Sensitive Financial or Personal Information – Always keep this away from cookies.

Note: GLH does not share your personal or account information and Stripe secures your payment activity.
